

Figure 5.9 Photomicrographs of a thin section (see Chapter 7) showing zoned crystals of pyroxene (P) (crossed polarizers). The chemical zoning is indicated by a change in the color from the center of the crystals to the rim. The slender crystals are plagioclase. See also Figure 12.12 for zoned plagioclase.